

LAST RITES FOR FATHER WALSH

Church of the Immaculate Conception Filled With Laymen and Clergy at the Mass for the Dead Rector.

It was an impressive tribute that was paid to the late Rev. Edward J. Walsh at the Church of the Immaculate Conception this morning. The sacred edifice was completely filled and among the mourners were people from every walk of life. It was in the best sense a representative gathering, and a gathering as would naturally assemble to pay its respects when the last rites were being held over the remains of a man universally loved and respected.

Conspicuous among the mourners were his Honor Mayor Harry H. Yeaton and the members of the city government. The pastors of the churches of the city were also in attendance, all these by special invitation. Those who responded to the invitation included many of the most prominent business and professional men of the city.

Long before the hour at which the funeral services began, a great throng of mourners had filled the church to its capacity. Hundreds gazed reverently upon the body of Father Walsh and there was every manifestation of sincere grief. This grief was by no means confined to the parishioners of the dead clergyman.

Body Removed to Church.

The body clothed in the purple vestments of the dead pastor in a state black broadcloth casket, was removed at four o'clock on Thursday afternoon from the parochial residence to the church. The remains were followed by Bishop Guertin and several priests chanting the "Miserere" for the dead. The body bearers were Richard A. Kavan, P. J. Brown, Jeremiah Sweeten, Charles Lamonde, Joseph Long, Frank A. Pagan, Timothy Donovan.

The bishop, priests and altar boys proceeded to the sanctuary where office of the dead was read, followed by prayers of the congregation and the singing of the Libera by the choir. After the services the parishioners and many friends of Father Walsh, outside his church, viewed the body and guards of honor from the Knights of Columbus and the Ancient Order of Hibernians took up their watch continuing throughout the night.

Church Services

This morning at 6.30 mass was offered by the Rt. Rev. Dennis Feehan, D. D., Bishop of Fall River, a classmate of the Rev. Father Walsh.

At seven o'clock a high mass of Requiem was offered by Rev. Father Mulvanity at which the children of the parish attended. The solemn high mass of Requiem was celebrated at 10 o'clock with the following priests, of the diocese serving in the several offices: Celebrant, Rev. Herbert A. Heenan of East Jaffrey; deacon Rev. William J. Pendergast of Duffield; sub-deacon Rev. P. E. Walsh of Woodville; master of ceremonies Rev. J. C. Buckley, D. C. L. of Manchester; thurifer Rev. D. E. Cottor of Harrisville; acolytes, Rev. Edmund J. Quirk of Dover, Rev. John J. Driskoll of Hillsboro.

The priests' choir of twenty voices chanted the Gregorian service led by Rev. Francis X. Lyons of Manchester, assisted by Rev. John J. Murphy of Rye Brook. Rev. Ullrie Godin of Greenfield presided at the organ.

The ushers were R. D. McDonough, Thomas Palmer, Michael J. Griffin, Jr., John Quirk, Dennis Long, William Hayne, Charles Quinn.

In the sanctuary was Rt. Rev. George Albert Guertin, Bishop of Manchester and Rt. Rev. Daniel Feehan, D. D., Bishop of Fall River, Mass.

A very able eulogy was delivered by Rev. P. J. Scott of St. Michael's church, Exeter, as follows:

"The souls of the just are in the hands of God and the torments of death shall not touch them. . . . In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die and their departure was taken for misery, and their going away from us for utter desolation, but they are at peace and though in the sight of men they suffered torments, their hope is full of immortality."—Wisdom III, 1-4.

The occasion which brings us together in this sacred edifice this morning has a solemnity that is impressive far beyond the ordinary circumstances

(Special to The Herald)

Petrograd, March 26.—The Austrian troops have evacuated the city of Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina, and are in full retreat from that province toward Hungary, according to advice received by the Russian war office today. These stated that the Russian troops defeated the Austrian forces after three days of severe fighting on the Pruth river, and as the Austrians retreated they pursued them with vigor. Russian military experts, in commenting upon the evacuation of Czernowitz by the Austrian forces, asserted today that this means that the enemy had been flanked and in addition the evacuation of Czernowitz must have retired from their position north of the Jablonica Pass. This move on the part of the Austrians leaves the way open for the advance of the Russian forces into Hungary, through the Carpathians.

GERMAN ZEPPELIN ATTACKS RUSSIAN FORTRESS

SUBMARINE GETS ANOTHER MERCHANTMAN
(Special to The Herald)

London, March 26.—Within 14 hours after the Admiralty officials had declared that the German submarine losses would result in an abandonment of the under-water warfare against English shipping, news was received here today of the destruction of another British merchant ship in the English channel, the favorite hunting ground of the Kaiser's submarines. The latest victim of the submarine campaign, in the broad war was the British steamer Delmira, a vessel of 2211 tons. She was torpedoed and sunk in the English Channel Thursday afternoon by a German submarine. All members of the crew were saved, and landed at Portsmouth today.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Chick of Kittery Given Linen Shower by Her Friends.

A delightful surprise party was recently tendered Miss Marion Chick of Kittery at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Parsons of Langdon street, where a few of her many friends assembled to give her a linen shower in recognition of her coming marriage to Mr. Lester Bowker of Kittery.

Miss Chick had previously been invited to spend the evening with Mrs. Parsons, but upon her arrival was greatly surprised that many guests had arrived previously assembled.

The dining room was tastefully decorated in red and white, each place at the table being designated by a dainty place card and basket. A light luncheon of omea and fancy wafers was served by the hostess.

Games and vocal and instrumental music were enjoyed during the evening, but a tangle of string was the main feature of interest. Each guest having a string was requested to proceed with the untangling of it. The course of the string of the bride-elect led to a closet where was concealed a basket containing many dainty and useful pieces of linen and embroideries.

At a late hour the guests departed for their various homes, bestowing upon Miss Chick a shower of best wishes for her future happiness.

Johnny McGraw Seems To Have Landed Prize Catcher In Smith; Scene at Marlin

—SMITH—

Marlin, Texas, March 25.—The 21 player limit which the moguls of the national league decided upon for the teams of their organization is not popular with the managers and one has but to think of the problem that faces all the leaders as a result of the rule to understand the reason of its unpopularity. Take the case of John McGraw of the Giants. He has a host of raw material with which he is loth to part. But he must let loose most of the youngsters because the powers that be have so commanded. Of the regiment of recruits which the Giants procured by purchase, draft and other means last fall, only two or three are sure of a berth with the team. One man whose playing has stood out is Harry Smith, a catcher, a product of the Giants' home town. Stinker Dick Kline is responsible for Smith. He is rabidly enthusiastic over the youngster and says that when the fans of New York see him in action they will erase from their memories thoughts of Bresnahan and Bowerman and will place the crown of laurel on this raw recruit whom Dick says is the best in the business. Christy Mathewson thinks well of Smith and says he will develop into a crackerjack. Photograph shows McGraw batting out files to the youngsters.

It is stated that the rheumatic trouble which caused his death he had studiously kept from the knowledge of his parents, his learning of it about the time it compelled his retirement last June. They had him taken to a sanitarium in Melrose and five months ago to the hospital in Brookline.

IN FIVE MINUTES NO SICK STOMACH, INDIGESTION, GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" is the quickest and surest Stomach relief.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves, soon, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels, a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad; stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish, or has a sore throat, give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.

FARM BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY FIRE

South Eliot Visited by Fire that Threatens that Section--Justin W. Brooks Buildings Burned With Three Horses and Cow

The farm house and buildings of Mr. Justin W. Brooks at South Eliot, were destroyed by fire on Thursday afternoon and for a time the town was threatened with a very bad fire as several other houses caught.

The fire got a good start and before it was discovered the flames had enveloped the large barn and three horses and a cow were burned to death and another cow was rescued only after her head and shoulders had been burned. From the barn the flames spread to the other outbuildings and to the house and despite the efforts of the neighbors this was seen a mass of flames.

Mr. Brooks was in Newmarket at the time and didn't return until after his property had been completely destroyed.

Woods, Sr. which is located across the road from the Brooks property. The piano and other furniture in the church vestry were removed and only hard work on the part of the Portsmouth Kiltory boys prevented the destruction of the buildings.

On the Brooks farm every building was burned to the ground including a large inclosed windmill. The farm was well stocked and the loss is heavy. There were fifty tons of hay and all of the farming tools in addition to the grain and other supplies. The loss will exceed $6,000.

About 3.30 Thursday afternoon a man asked permission at the house to lie down in the barn. The request was granted with provision that he would not smoke. Shortly after the fire started this man was seen going along the road towards Kiltory's.

Mr. Brooks was in Newmarket at the time and didn't return until after his property had been completely destroyed.

TO PRESENT TRANSFER OF TRANSPORTATION

Concord, March 25--The committee on judiciary of the senate reported a new bill entitled an act in relation to legislative transportation, which provides for the punishment by fine of persons making use of railway transportation furnished by the state for other purposes than that for which it was intended. Senator Kinney of Claremont moved a suspension of the rules to enable the passage of the bill.

Senator Wagner of Manchester thought the bill of sufficient importance to be printed and give every member of the senate and house of representatives an opportunity to familiarize themselves with its provisions.

Senator Martin of Concord expressed the opinion that the bill was very simple and he did not believe that any member of the senate cared to transfer his transportation to any person not entitled to its use. He expressed the hope that the bill might pass and the senate so voted.

The committee on judiciary this morning reported favorably a bill re-districting the senatorial districts. The bill changes four districts in Manchester, as stated in yesterday's paper.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At the Real Cause--Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment--clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with indigestion, food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime, for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, March 25--The unification of the food and drug laws, in various states throughout the country is being advocated by the food and drug laws committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. To bring this about a committee has been holding hearings for the last two months, thoroughly discussing every phase of the question. According to members of the committee, the unification of the food and drug laws in the United States will save millions of dollars to manufacturers and the general public. The standardization under which food and drugs can be manufactured and shipped in interstate commerce in the opinion of the committee will do away with much of the fraud and general hardship worked about through the requirements of the various states in the country. It is known that at the present time the United States Department of Agriculture requires one standard in the manufacture of food supplies and drugs doing an interstate business have already appeared before the committee and have testified that the extra expense incurred in observing the regulations of different states on labels alone amounts to thousands of dollars annually. Some states require that a label be placed on each package or bottle sold in those particular states, while others do not have such requirements. It is expected the committee's recommendations will be endorsed by the board of directors and that the matter will be taken up with the authorities in Washington.

Charles F. Campbell of Worcester, a member of the democratic state committee was appointed a member of the ballot law commission to take the place of Malachi. The governor appointed this commission on the matter a celebration of the Pilgrim Tercentenary; Curtis Guild, Sherman Whipple, Rev. Albert B. Dunning, Dennis A. McCarthy, Arthur Lord of Plymouth, James Logan of Worcester and Ralph Adams Cram.

Frank P. Daley of the Boston Overseers of the Poor has written a letter to the governor, calling upon him to do all in his power to aid the homeless unemployed. The city authorities feel that the greater burden for caring for the unemployed, and particularly those of other districts should fall upon the state as a state's function. He said: "We now have 1100 men applying for lodging each night, of whom less than 400 are Boston men. It would appear to be the duty of the state to share in the care of these men to the extent of giving them food. Conditions at the state shelter for the homeless at Commonwealth Pier are bad. The men are given warmth and shelter, nothing more. At the city house they have medical attention, baths, beds and food."

Senator Doyle of New Bedford for the recess committee on simplifying city charters has reported in the state senate a comprehensive bill carrying four charter forms, anyone of which may be accepted by a city vote of the people. Plan A provides for a city government with a mayor and city council of nine elected at large; Plan B provides a charter for a Mayor and City Council elected by districts or wards; Plan C provides the commission form of government with a mayor or four commissioners; Plan D provides a mayor and four councillors and administrative officer called the city manager. This act does not apply to the city of Boston.

Governor Walsh has just signed the following bill: providing that veterans of the Civil War in state service shall not be retired on pension unless they have served five years; providing for an investigation and a report relative to reimbursing cities and towns for hospital care of tuberculosis patients; appropriating $47,000 for salaries and expenses in the prison department of the Commonwealth.

ing everything, when you've sat up nights wrapping up your toes in bandages, unearring on salves that rub off or swell up the corn, pasting on cotton plasters that make corns pop-eyed, slaughtering your toes with razors, jabbing them with knives and prunings to the quick with scissors--and then you put on 2 drops of "GETS-IT" and see your corn fall right off--why, it just looks like a miracle. Just try it. "GETS-IT" never fails. No pain, no trouble. Use it for any corn, callus, wart or bunion.

Help the Police.

The superintendent of police in a large city in which there have been many robberies and burglaries of late, crimes altogether too frequent in all large cities at all times, asks the people to help the officers in preventing these crimes and tells how they can do so. He urges women to keep the windows securely fastened, to hide their valuables in more out-of-the-way places than bureau drawers, not to leave notes at the house stating that they are out and will not be home till a certain time, not to wear costly jewelry while on shopping tours, to carry their handbags under their arms, and in various other ways to lessen the temptation and opportunities presented to robbers by the carelessness of most women with reference to the practices mentioned. The superintendent also cautions men not to exhibit large sums of money, to keep their safes locked, to keep lights in their places of business after closing, etc. He says if all would observe these simple precautions robberies and burglaries would be much less frequent, and of course he is right. What he recommends is in line with plain common sense. It ought not to be necessary to call the attention of any one to the desirability of such precautions as he mentions, but, unfortunately, there are too many who never sense danger till it is too late, and then they depend upon the police to undo the results of their own carelessness, to restore their property and put the criminals behind the bars.

Assisting the police in the ways mentioned is all right so far as it goes, but it is possible to assist them even more substantially in other ways. If all were ready to tell what they know of evil doing in their communities, to testify willingly in court or to help an officer in a struggle against odds, the work of the police would be less difficult and more effective. The police would also be greatly aided by sterner action on the part of the courts in many cases. It is small encouragement to police officers when convicted men that they have worked hard to ferret out and apprehend are turned loose by the courts on probation or sentenced to pay fines or serve terms ridiculously small.

The fact is that the work of the detectives and police in practically every city is well done. If that of the legal machinery were as thoroughly done it would afford the greatest encouragement to the police forces that it is possible to imagine. It would far exceed in value the hiding of jewelry and the locking of windows, doors and safes, proper as all those things are. It would cause officers to feel that their work was respected, something which at times it is difficult for them to do under present conditions.

The department of agriculture says that exportations of wheat and flour at the present rate cannot be long continued without actually endangering the home supply. And yet so long as we seek the markets of the world it is not easy to understand how the farmers can be denied the privileges that manufacturers seek and are permitted to enjoy. And the probability is that high prices will be the only effect of the heavy exportations. There is no reason to believe that this country will run short of breadstuffs.

It is said of the late Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts that he "was one of the most conspicuous examples of a man who frankly said just what he meant and never made any effort to conceal his real feelings." But there are lots of men equally conspicuous in this respect who have never become conspicuous in any other.

Large quantities of business circulars and advertising matter are now going through the mails, showing that the merchants and manufacturers are confident that there is business to be done and that they are ready to attend to it. Conditions are not so bad as they might be in the good old United States.

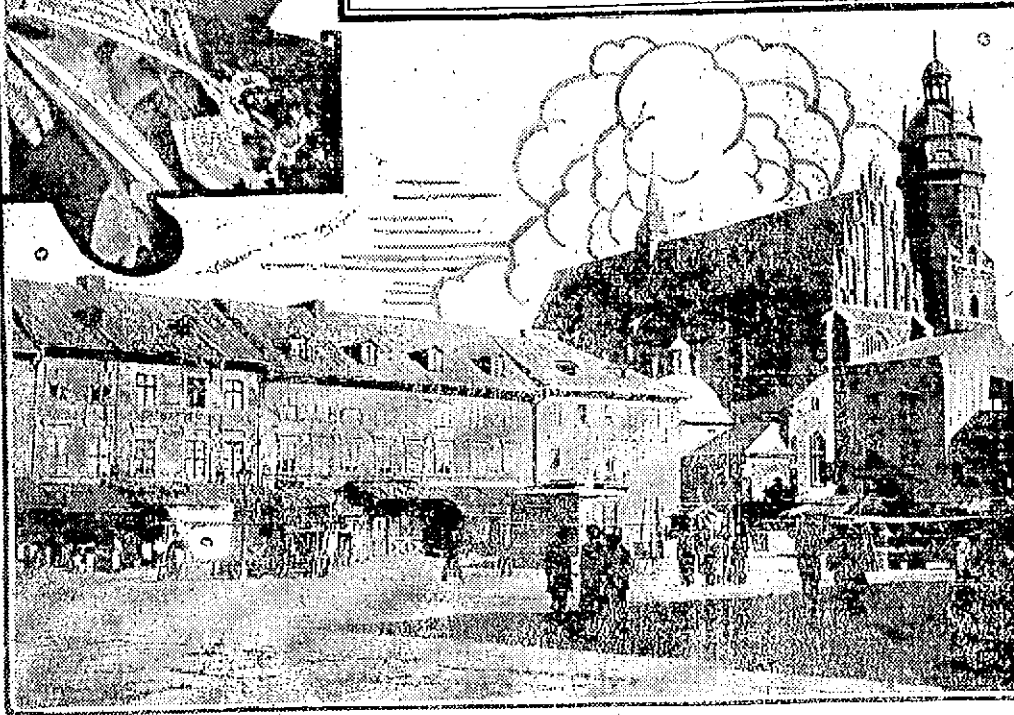

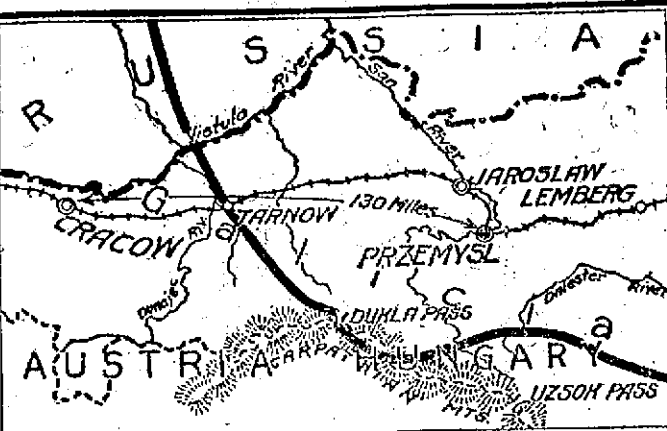

Among the men who called on an eastern city for employment a few days ago was one having a bank book showing a deposit of $1,000. Evidence multiplies daily that the time for successful calamity howling in this country is rapidly drawing to a close.

It is reported that many fat men in New York are attempting to reduce their waist measure by dancing. If the experiment fails there is one more thing that many of them could doubtless try to advantage.

COMMANDER SMITH CONFIRMS LOSS OF F-4

Submarine at Mouth of Honolulu Harbor, Surface Covered With Fuel Oil.

Washington, March 26.—The sinking of the submarine F-4 off Honolulu yesterday was officially reported to the Navy Department today in a brief dispatch from Commander Smith, commander of the first division of the Pacific submarine fleet. The dispatch read: "The F-4 left tender 9 a. m. for submerged run—25—failed to return to surface. It is at entrance of harbor in 30 fathoms of water. Surface covered with fuel oil; diving and dragging." Signed Smith.

Admiral Taylor in charge of the bureau of materials of the Navy Department said today that the presence of fuel oil on the surface might indicate that the worst had happened to the F-4. It is likely that the crew were unable to expell the water from her tanks and in order to come to the surface they had blown the oil out. As it did not rise at this move the entire crew are probably lost. He also said she may have been rammed and her tanks ripped open.

AUDIENCE PLEASSED WITH LECTURE

Dr. Hawkins Delivered Talk, Illustrated With Wonderful Pictures, at Rye Town Hall.

It was a large and appreciative audience which listened to Rev. Cham-bercy J. Hawkins, pastor of the Congregational church at Jamaica Plain, Mass., on Thursday evening at the Town Hall, when he delivered a lecture on "Bright Eyes and Wild Hearts of Our Northern Woods" illustrated by the stereopticon, under the auspices of the Rye Federated Club.

Dr. Hawkins has spent many years of his life in the northern woods, living with his friends, the bear, deer, moose, beaver, rabbit, squirrel, porcupine owl, lynx, heron, partridge etc.

The pictures are probably without equal in the country and the audience was very much astonished to see what could be done with the lens of the camera. To see these moose and deer on the screen is equivalent to seeing them in their own environments. When Mr. Hawkins relates his personal experiences in the woods and how he managed to get them, his harrowing experiences in chasing moose, trying to ride them across lakes, being attacked by them, calling them with the birch horn and flash-lighting them at night, it holds the audience spell-bound.

The views are beautifully colored and have been pronounced unexcelled by experienced hunters and nature scientists throughout the country. The collection of nature photography obtained with the utmost difficulty is among the finest in the world.

CURRENT OPINION

Profit Sharing May Establish an Era of Abiding Industrial Peace.

In one hundred and thirteen years our total wealth multiplied one hundred and twenty-five fold and is now rated at the enormous sum of one hundred and forty billion dollars. This, if equally distributed, would give one thousand three hundred and twelve dollars to every man, woman and child between the two oceans. But there's the rub, for, while a few are rich beyond the dream of avarice, many have not the wherewithal to feed and clothe themselves.

The signs of the times indicate, however, that the hope of better conditions is not too fantastic for entertainment. The new era began when N. O. Nelson of St. Louis originated the plan of sharing profits with his employees. Other great concerns are establishing pension systems for their employees which put to blush the liberal pension system of the federal government for the soldiers of our various wars.

Blessed be the name, I say, of the man who, without regard to politics or religion, establishes abiding peace between labor and capital, which should be friends and not enemies.—By Champ Clark, Speaker of the National House of Representatives.

of Daniel Boone, the great Kentucky hunter and guide.

This rare entertainment was a fine treat enjoyed by the members of the Rye Federated Club and their friends.

Mrs. Charles D. Drake, chairman of the committee of Rye Federated Clubs introduced the speaker and had general charge of the affair.

Miss Gladys Moulton and Mrs. Elizabeth Garrett were at the door.

At the conclusion of the entertainment dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Mr. Frederick Reib, pianist, accompanied by Mr. Chester D. Drake on the drums, furnished music for the dancing.

Derry, N. H., March 25.—A five, two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cross was killed this morning by the Manchester and Boston express at Wilson's Crossing.

BOWLING PRIZES WERE STOLEN

Alleys Broken Into and Four Valuable Watches Taken From Case.

Nashua, March 25.—Four of the valuable watches offered for prizes for the best bowling at the Citizens alleys were stolen from their case at the alleys last night. With them were also taken a costly overcoat belonging to Everett S. McQuestion, the proprietor, some knives, cigars, cigarettes and cigarette case.

Entrance was probably made through an window which was open. The first known of the break was this morning when the employees opened up the place and found that it had been raided. It was evident that the thief or thieves knew what they were after as nothing else was disturbed and the most valuable things in the place which could be easily carried off were taken.

The work is undoubtedly the work of someone who knows the place well.

of death. Yet even for this bereavement, so startling in its suddenness, the Holy Church has a message of comfort and consolation. She bids us view this unexpected visitation in the light of the great Eternal truths which have formed the subjects of our constant meditation since Ash Wednesday. The dominant idea which the church sets before us during Lent is the idea of death, death inevitable in its coming, and uncertain in its circumstances, but death robbed of its terrors by the mercy of that Loving Saviour who for our souls' sake and for our sins' atonement took on the heavy burden of the cross and crimsoned the way to Calvary's height with the evidences of that boundless all-embracing love in whose depths the Christian soul rests assured and undismayed. The burden of the church's message for the Passion time is the story of how God's love triumphed and our blessed immortality was won. In that priceless ninth hour of the first Good Friday when the heavens thundered and the earth rocked and the light of divine truth pierced the bronze helmet of the pagan soldier at the foot of the cross, there was enacted the sublime mystery of atonement in which the Sacred Heart of the Redeemer poured forth a boundless blood of divine love to soothe the sorrows of a suffering, waiting world, and to kindle the light of Christ, that hope which shall never fail. In that blessed, awful hour when the depths of utter desolation were sounded to reveal the treasure of supreme love, the grave forever lost its victory and the death for all time lost the poison of its sting.

Christian faith is in all circumstances a priceless treasure, but no where is its sustaining power, so strongly felt, nowhere does its consolations sink so gently upon the heart as when we stand beside the bier of one we loved in life. Then indeed there is comfort in the Saviour's assurance to sorrowing sisters at Bethany. "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me though he be dead shall live, and every one that liveth and believeth in me shall not die for ever." Sorrow, indeed, must have its hour. It is nature's protest for the severing of human ties. But the Christian never sorrows "like those who have no hope." Though pleasant associations be rudely broken, though a voice we loved be forever stilled, though a cherished figure vanish suddenly from our world, we have suffered no everlasting loss. All that was true and noble and worthy of love in that friend still lives and is more than ever worthy of our love and our loyalty for "The souls of the just are in the hands of God and the torment of death shall not touch them."

God's friendship is not broken like human ties; its bonds are eternal. All who cherish that friendship are to be members of one grand united family with Jesus Christ the Loving Saviour as the centre, hence between us and the dead there is no black gulf of bitter separation, only the golden bridge of absence across which love flies with sweet foot. Across that golden bridge we send the golden tribute of our prayers and sorrow turns to resignation as we realize that we can still prove our friendship for the departed by the testimony that is strongest and will serve him best, the testimony of our prayers and good works.

The soul's friendship for God must be perfect before it can reach perfect enjoyment. Even though it quit the body with no lasting enmity towards its creator, it may still be weighted with slight imperfections which stay its progress towards the throne all pure, it can still bear burdens of atonement to be made and sufferings to be endured before the peace of God can enfold it in supreme contentment. The certain assurance that we who are left behind can pay these debts for our departed, can lift these burdens and can hasten this perfect enjoyment, is the illuminating truth which faith brings like a blessed sunshine upon the night of our sorrow, for love's highest privilege is to do and to suffer for those who claim our heart's affections. It is for this reason that the church's office for the dead is one continued petition, "Eternal rest grant to them, O Lord." That prayer is a duty we owe to our departed. With Holy Communion and the Holy Mass it forms a sweet offering of charity by which we may atone for all that may have been mean or unworthy in our conduct toward the friends who have gone.

Charity for the dead binds us in proportion to the nearness of our ties. Amid all charity's claims none are higher or holier than the bonds which bind a people to their pastor. The parish priest is the common father of the flock. With a father's heart, he feels for all. A joy that comes even to the humblest of his flock is for him a cause of rejoicing and no sorrow ever visits a home in the parish which does not leave part of its burden at the pastor's door. With all the vital interests of his people, the person and the character of the priest are intimately associated. When, therefore, a parish priest dies, sorrow is deep and widespread, but that very sorrow in its loudest expression, bears the strongest assurance of consolation because it tells the abundance of prayers and good works to be sent up to the throne of the Great High Priest for the eternal repose of a father whom a people loved.

The Reverend Edward J. Walsh has well deserved the grateful remembrance and fervent prayers of all those to whose spiritual welfare he has ministered during his priestly career. Through five and thirty years, he has labored for the glory of God and the salvation of souls. Five different parishes have profited by his ministrations and everywhere and always his conduct was marked by a steadfast devotion to duty. At St. Donalton's, Portland, and at Waterville, he showed all the zeal of an ardent young priest in his first fervor. Gorham was the scene of his first pastoral care and there he proved his zeal by completing a church at Berlin, which was at that date a mission of Gorham. Nearly twenty years of his priestly life were passed in Salmon Falls, where the majority of his flock spoke a language that was not his mother tongue. So broad was his charity, and so kindly his tact, that he held to his dying day the undivided affection of the Salmon Falls parish.

Of his whole-souled devotion to the interests of his last pastoral responsibility, I need not speak to the Catholics of Portsmouth. The evidences of his zeal for the temporal progress of this parish form a story in figures of which you are justly proud, and for which you should rightly bless his memory. A little less than eight years ago, he came among you to take up a burden which required able administration. His predecessor, of lovable memory, had undertaken an extensive addition to the parish plant, but an unexpected and fatal illness prevented his carrying the plans to completion. Father Walsh addressed himself to the task with his accustomed energy and so successfully did he labor and so generously were his efforts supported, that in less than eight years the debt was decreased more than twenty thousand dollars. This story of figures, creditable though it be, stops far short of telling all that here is in a pastor's activity for God and his people. Did I not know so well the modest reserve of your dead pastor and the displeasure with which he regarded anything that savored of praise, it would be a pleasing task to enlarge upon his priestly virtues, and particularly his deep charity which was regulated by the Saviour's motto, "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." By the merest chance, there came to my notice a short time since, the evidence of some of those charitable acts, admirable in their generosity, admirable in their timeliness and their delicacy, and admirable beyond measure in the pains taken that they should be known only to God and the recipients. To tell of such deeds belongs of right to the recording angel and to him alone. Nor does the parish need the tale of those golden deeds hidden under an air of coolness. There are others which may, and will, be told. In yonder convent, the good sisters who labor so unselfishly for youth, can tell of a kindness that was prompt, and tact that omitted nothing, and a consideration that made the duties of the schoolroom agreeable and efficient. In the homes of want and affliction, other grateful women will tell of kindly help received, and will bless the memory of him who gave twice because he gave with a good heart.

As a man, simplicity was the dominant note of Father Walsh's character. Born of sturdy Irish stock, one of a family of eight, he was endowed by nature with a vigorous constitution. Nature found in him a son deeply grateful for her gifts. He loved the freedom of the open fields, the friendly solitude of deep woods, and the majesty of the power of the ocean. To his eyes, all the great world out of doors was an open book which spoke the praises of nature's God. A horse or a dog were to him creatures worthy of affection because a kind Providence had created them for man's use and comfort, and had endowed them with instincts of fidelity which raised them to a footing of comradeship. He understood, with the royal psalmist that, "The Earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world and all that dwell therein." In thought and action, he was vigorous and singularly direct. His mind traveled straight to the purpose, and having once settled on the end to be attained, that end was to be reached despite all obstacles and by the most direct line. To minds like that diplomacy is an art not worthy of the learning. In such characters, the consciousness of right begets a tenacity stronger than death. Men of that mould have much of nature's silence, and not a little of nature's latent strength. They talk little and act with determination. By observers who look no deeper than the surface, they are sometimes misjudged and often misunderstood, but those who have been privileged to know one such character in the fullness of its development will praise God for the splendid sincerity of the type.

Among his associates in the priesthood, Father Walsh loved best the company of men much younger than himself. On occasions like the Forty Hours Devotion, he delighted in being surrounded by a gathering of young priests. With friendly eye he noted their youthful vigor and activity, and with a zest no less keen than the youngest, he encouraged the clash of nimble wits. In no other parish home did the young priest meet a heartier welcome or a more sympathetic interest in the work in which he chanced to be engaged. It was in such a company that he spent the last hours of his life, and never did he seem more cheerful than when he bade the last good-bye on Tuesday morning, only a brief hour and a half before the great High Priest called him home. His end was sudden and to human understanding it seems inexplicably sad. But human wisdom is short-sighted at its best, and only the mind illuminated by faith can view the mysteries of life in their true perspective. Viewed in that light, Father Walsh's death was singularly beautiful. All his life, he had cherished a most tender devotion to our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament. His visit to the waiting Master in the tabernacle was a duty which he permitted no other cares to replace. Was it not fitting that his last hours should be spent in the church amid the solemnity of the Forty Hours Devotion? In the fullness of that scene enacted in this church on Tuesday morning were for our departed friend exchanged for the unspeakable glories which they so faithfully, but sweetly, represent, that the white-robed, garland-crowned children who tread these aisles with happy faces and reverent step, gazed from his view only to be replaced by the endless procession of white-robed figures who walk before the throne of glory unveiled, that the majestic strains of the "Pange Linguae" died upon his ears only to give place to the celestial harmonies of the "Holy, Holy," in which the angelic choirs sing the happiness of their state and the glory of the God they see.

Should there still be some atonement to be made before that vision can be realized, our departed friend will not lack for prayers and good works to speed him on his way. His Bishop and his brother priests will send up to Heaven's throne the priceless offerings of masses. The sisters will be mindful of him in fervent communion for his soul. They echo of his parish, and other parishes in which he served, will long remember him in their prayers. In yonder school building innocent children, whose prayers are to God's ear like the pleading of angel voices, have already sent up, and will continue to send up, floods of fervent petitions, and in answer to all these, the Master whom he served so well must, we believe, soon say his "well done" and lead our friend to "a place of light and everlasting peace."

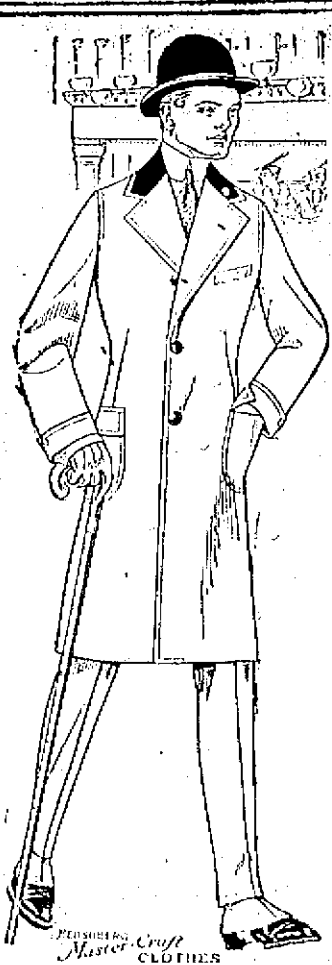

For ourselves, Beloved Brethren, this day has a lesson so evident and so pointed that no words are necessary to bring it home. We are all approaching the hour that must be our last on earth. God grant that we may strive to live constantly as we would wish to die! In the words of Cardinal Newman, "May he support us all the day long, till the shades lengthen, and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed, and the fever of life is over, and our work is done! Then in His mercy may He give us a safe lodging, and a holy rest and peace, at the last. Amen."

Services at Grave
The body was escorted to the cemetery by the Knights of Columbus and the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Prayers at the grave were offered by the Rev. P. J. McKenna of Barre Vt., a life long friend of the deceased. The Benediction was sung by the Priest's Choir.

The pall bearers were Richard A. Kirvan, Timothy Donovan, John Leary, John Sheehan, representing Portsmouth Council Knights of Columbus, and Timothy Connors, Jeremiah Sweetey, Frank O'Brien, Timothy Foley, representing Division 2, A. O. H.

Interment was in Calvary cemetery and was in charge of Funeral Director W. P. Mitchell.

GERMANS BURN A POLISH CITY

Turks Lose Very Heavy in the Dardanelles-- Heavy Fighting in the Carpathians With Battle in the Snow

London, March 25.—Reuter's correspondent at Tenedos Island forwarded the following today:

According to reliable information obtained from refugees from Dardanelles, the Turks suffered enormous losses in the attack of the allied fleet, March 18. The greater part of the fortresses and powder magazines was reduced.

The Turkish submarine defenses were declared to have lost their military value, owing to the mines breaking adrift.

Two British destroyers on Wednesday penetrated the straits to a considerable distance.

Petrograd, March 25.—In retaliation for Russian occupation of Memel, the Germans have applied the torch at Suwalki, capital of the Polish province of that name, according to dispatches to the war office today. Russian relations brought word to Grodno that every government building in Suwalki has been set afire and that the glare of the burning buildings there at night, could be seen for miles.

As a further act of vengeance, the war office announced today, German warships have bombarded a number of unfortified Russian villages in the province of Courland on the Baltic. Seven German battleships, accompanied by 23 torpedo boats, appeared along the coast near Polangen and levelled the homes of peasant villages.

The German war office announced several days ago that the government buildings at Suwalki and other Russian provincial capitals would be turned in retaliation for alleged Russian outrages. A press bureau statement from Berlin last night said that German warships assisted in driving the Russians out of Memel by bombarding Polangen and the road from Polangen to Libau.

London, March 25.—In the first stages of the great battle preceding the Russian attempt against Budapest, a Slav force has pressed through the western gaps of the Hun line and entrenched itself within 15 miles of the Hungarian city of Barfa.

Reports both from Petrograd and from Vienna agreed today that near Barfa, and between the Lappow and Czok passes, the troops of the Czar are now delivering their mightiest smashes. Since the fall of Permyl the fighting along this 50-mile battlefront has taken on tremendous importance. One report from Petrograd today said that both the Czar and the Grand Duke Nicholas will go to the scene of the Carpathian operations as soon as railway communications are restored south of Permyl.

Battle in Deep Snows

Only meagre bits of news have come from the Austrian and Russian capitals regarding the progress of the big Carpathian battle. These indicate that the opposing armies are now locked in a great struggle in the snows that may settle the fate of Hungary. A decisive victory at the mountain passes for the Russians will start a great force of Slavs, augmented by the hordes of Permyl, pouring through the Carpathians into the Hungarian plain for the advance against Budapest.

According to the best information here, the Russians who have retained control of the important passes of the Duka have advanced to a position near Seiduk in Hungary. Their present objective is Barfa, the northern terminus of a railway, leading south through the principal upper Hungarian city of Kassa. Barfa lies 150 miles northeast of Budapest. The first engagement if the Russians succeed in capturing the railroad, will be fought around Kassa, 42 miles south of the position now occupied by the Slavs.

East of the Duka, where large bodies of Austro-Germans are clashing with the Russians north of the Carpathians, the slaughter is heavier. The Russians are throwing regiment after regiment against the stubborn Austro-German defence in a great effort to gain control of the Lappow and Czok passes.

Permyl Force En Route

No hint has come from the Russian war office regarding the disposition of the Russian corps that invaded Permyl though German critics accept it as a fact that part of this army already is en route to the Lappow and Czok pass regions.

An official statement from the Russian war office today said that the Russian booty at Permyl included 500 wagons, four locomotives and great quantities of coal but contained no other news.

A semi-official statement from Petrograd today indicated a sudden resumption of fighting at several points in Poland. Northwest of Ostrotenka, on the left bank of the Danube, Petrograd asserted that the Russians have captured several trenches of the enemy and have repulsed seven counterattacks. Special mention is made of desperate fighting in the woods near Valk.

"THE LILAC DOMINO" AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON

Last Week of Successful Run

"The Lilac Domino" continues to attract large and enthusiastic audiences to the Majestic Theatre, Boston, where it enters on its last week, Monday March 29, and many of the people have already seen this phenomenal success several times. Nothing quite so beautiful in the way of a musical production has been offered or any other year, and the myriads of singing and dancing girls make up by far the prettiest chorus Boston has yet seen.

The splendor of the scenic effects, the magnificent vocal and acting opportunities and the wonderful collection of artistic talent, youth, beauty, and regal costumes all contribute heavily to make this brilliant master piece stand out pre-eminently and alone. It creates an atmosphere that lifts you at once from the realm of the sordid from business cares and home responsibilities. The holiday spirit—that is the mood of it—and you catch it yourself before the opening chorus is well on its way.

Between the second and third act an immense white curtain takes the actors and upon it is thrown kaleidoscopic pictures of a gorgeous carnival at Nice—moving pictures of the most marvellous floats that imagination could conceive, and some of them so ridiculous in their gigantic proportions and comic representation that the audience gasps in the rous which seem to rise from the spectators of the pictures. The battle of the flowers is beauty unparalleled, which prepares the way for the carnival scene in the last act of the play. While you are still holding your breath from laughing at the monstrosities of some of them, the curtain goes upon the real stage and the story goes to a marvellous finish.

There are twenty song hits in a piece and Mr. Andrews Dippel, the famous impersonator and experienced manager of grand opera has chosen the cast and planned the settings with exquisite taste and wonderful effect.

Miss Eleanor Parker in the title role, is an excellent example of the pliant and mischievous maiden, fresh from school, who masquerades in the lilac domino, and plays havoc with men's hearts with her enchanting voice. The fun and festivity which she introduces into the first act and the

You will like the taste of Cottolene-cooked foods

In addition to making food better, Cottolene makes it taste better—gives it more appeal to the appetite—a relish that cannot be obtained with any other shortening or cooking fat.

Cottolene is itself a choice pure food product. It consists of the most highly refined cottonseed oil, combined with selected beef stearine.

Attempts to imitate Cottolene and to produce substitutes for it have failed because only a specially refined highest grade cottonseed oil is used exclusively in Cottolene, and the beef stearine is from choice leaf beef suet.

Cottolene

has for a quarter of a century been a leader among pure food products. Its supremacy over all other shortening and cooking fats remains unchallenged.

Insist upon getting real Cottolene, and satisfaction must be yours. Make your biscuits, your pies and your cakes more tempting, more pleasing to the palate, more easily digested, by using Cottolene for shortening.

For frying, use Cottolene over and over. It does not absorb tastes or odors. Always heat it slowly and use one-third less than of any other shortening or frying fat.

It is always ready for instant use. No chopping or crushing is necessary. It mixes readily with flour and creams up beautifully.

Pails of various sizes, to serve your convenience. Arrange with your grocer for a regular supply.

Write to our General Offices, Chicago, for a free copy of our real cook book, "HOME HELPS."

LEGISLATION ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY FOR B. & M.

Boston, March 25.—If legislation is not passed that will permit the reorganization of the Boston and Maine railroad, the alternative is a receivership declared James H. Hustis, president of the system today, addressing the joint legislative committee on railroads, which was conducting its first hearing of the reorganization bill.

The bill, which provides for reorganization of the road, was prepared by the public service commissions of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, in hope of solving the difficulties that now beset the corporation.

Mr. Hustis said he hoped a receivership might be averted. He declared a receivership would set back for years the industrial and commercial development of the parts of New England the road served and, if continued long enough, might mean the wiping out of the Boston and Maine stock. The railroad president said the Boston and Maine is bankrupt, and that the raising of rates and return of prosperity would assist, but not cure, the trouble. He also said that it is apparent the road is not in shape to handle any large increase in traffic, with its present facilities.

U. S. Dist. Atty. George W. Anderson appeared as special counsel for the Massachusetts public service commission. He said sane, constructive and enabling legislation for the Boston and Maine railroad is an absolute necessity. Mr. Anderson further declared that even if the public had imposed fewer burdens on the road in the way of direct and indirect legislation, and if the road had had efficient management in the past, it would still be in need of legislative assistance, because of economic conditions. He declared the principal condition referred to was the increase in prices of labor, etc., during the past 15 years.

As soon as the Boston and Maine is again solvent, there will be a great demand for electrification and better terminal facilities, he said. This was another reason for the need of assistance, Mr. Anderson believed. He spoke for 1-1/2 hours, explaining the various portions of the bill, and said it was a good one, and would help the road to get back on its feet.

The trustees of the Boston and Maine filed a brief answer to this bill with the committee, in which they state that at no time have they (the trustees) felt that the procurement of voluntary agreements on the part of many corporations to give up their present rentals could be accomplished without very liberal legislation and that nothing less than the greatest freedom to furnish a reasonable hope of success in this field. The trustees say the proposed bill puts upon the interested parties the most onerous conditions, that they discover nothing that can be done by any one of the 25 corporations that constitute the Boston and Maine system, or by anybody else, that can have any effect to change the legal rights of any person or corporation until the matter has been first submitted to the public service commission and approved by it.

When asked as to New Hampshire by Senator Henry G. Wells, Mr. Anderson said they are hard-headed people up there, and that he had talked with some of them. They naturally want all they can get from their leased line stock, but when he asked whether they want a receiver if they can't get as much as they do now, they told him No, no.

Then, said Mr. Anderson, the only thing to do is to talk this thing out in a sensible way. He believed this is yet to happen in New Hampshire, since he has been in telephone communication with them up there, but the danger is that with the time so short the Legislature may be misled by noise. However, the duty of this Legislature, he added, is plain. It should go right ahead with this matter whatever other states may do.

AMERICAN FARMERS' WIVES TELL TROUBLES TO UNCLE SAM

Washington, March 23.—The American farm housewives' attitude towards life in the rural district of the U. S. is reported in a compilation of excerpts from the letters written by farm women in every section of the country to Secretary of Agriculture House, and made public today. The compilation presents one of the most intimate human documents ever published by the Government, for the compiler, G. W. Wharton, chief of the department's office of information lets the women writers tell their own story.

Secretary Houston wrote to 55,000 farmwives asking them to write him what they thought of life on the American farm and what needs to be done to better the conditions of farm women. He received 2,241 replies. The information received from the women will be used in the administration of the new Smith-Lever cooperative and agricultural extension law which provides this year $10,000 government money for each state for use in aiding farmers.

Many of the women writers express contentment with farm life but others complain bitterly of their lot. Government ownership of railroads, telephone and telegraphs, better mail service and good roads are asked by scores of wives. The extracts from the letters describing the isolation of farm women are the most appealing:

Some of the responses came from men, husbands of women addressed. An Oklahoma man says, "The isolated life led by a good many of our farm women, and then too, for that matter has a tendency to retard development toward better living."

A Texas woman writes, "I have never been to a lecture, play or show. Our husbands don't believe in taking their wives out," writes a Pennsylvania woman. "In all these years I have never had a vacation; never went to church or entertainment; just worked early and late. I would rather go hungry half the time than go back to the farm," from Ohio. "The woman has no time to use the sitting room and its easy chairs," from Wisconsin. "Isolation, ignorance, loss of ambition, the incessant grind of labor are working against the farm woman's happiness and will ultimately spell disaster to our nation," from a Virginia woman. "The farmers' wife from the day she becomes a wife until the day of her death is the prop of the farm," from Georgia. "We would rather have free telephones and free moving pictures than seed," from Arkansas. "So long days is one trouble on the farm—5-30 a. m. to 9 p. m.," from Nebraska. "I do not hesitate to say that these women are becoming more and more dissatisfied. The main reason of unrest is the almost universal practice of hoarding the hired men in the family," from Colorado. "All work and no place to rest," from Washington state.

"I don't like my marriage. Don't have time to do anything but soap and ketchup today," from the other hand many women are contented, says the department report.

A New York woman says, "I don't believe the general farm woman nowadays lives as narrow a life as the bridge whist fiend."

"It is a woman's own fault now if she does not have a good time on the farm," from Michigan.

"The comfort and consequent happiness and contentment among farmers and their wives depend largely upon their own efforts," from Wisconsin.

"The country beats the city with all its nervous strain all to pieces," from Iowa.

A Missouri woman in her letters refers to her city-dwelling sisters with compassion as "the poor women in the city."

"Such love for home, flat dwellers never could feel," from West Virginia. A Louisiana woman blames writers who picture farm women as objects of pity, for an unrest which has no sound basis in fact or condition.

"I hate the cities, and am afraid of them," says a North Dakota woman.

KITTY MACKAY

Second and Last Week at Shubert Theatre, Boston, Begins Monday, March 29.

"No grouch could live in the atmosphere of 'Kitty Mackay'." is the way one New York newspaper described Catherine Chisholm Cushing's brilliant comedy, which is seen at the Shubert Theatre for the second and last week, beginning next Monday, March 29th.

"Kitty" comes from New York, where the play was enjoyed by audiences that taxed the capacity of the Comedy Theatre for more than a year. "Kitty Mackay" is a saucy, winsome Scottish lassie, with a quick tongue and a vivid imagination, and when the fairy prince comes to take her to London town she takes it all as a matter of course.

Those who know, declare that "Kitty Mackay" is the funniest play that has been in New York in years, and since she has started on her trip around the country every city she has visited agrees with the metropolises.

William Elliott, under whose direction the play was produced, has spared no expense or detail to make the production a pleasure to the eye as well as to the ear.

The cast is an excellent one, each member having been selected for their ability to interpret the particular character for which they are fitted. The program contains such well-known characters as Irene Haisman, Reginald Denny, Elizabeth Merson, Jack McDermott, Bertha Kent, John P. Glancy, Margaret Calverly and others.

"Kitty Mackay" outlasted every other play presented in New York last season. Catherine Chisholm Cushing's brilliant comedy caught the public fancy from the very start and not even through the warmest of the summer months was the attendance at the performances diminished.

The story of "Kitty" has to do with the adventures of a winsome Scottish Clanderella in London, and comprises so many funny situations and so much brilliant dialogue that it must be seen to be enjoyed.

FIELD HOSPITAL TO FRANCE
Red Cross Buys Complete Ambulance Outfit for Use by American Contingent in Paris—Fleet of 100 Motor Ambulances.

New York, March 25.—A complete field hospital purchased from the War Department by the American Red Cross Society for use by the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris was shipped on the steamship Guatemala of the French Line, which sailed yesterday for Havre. The hospital will be used by the American Hospital, which has a base hospital at Paris, an advanced hospital at Joully, near the battle front, and an ambulance service comprising about 100 motor ambulances. The equipment cost about $13,000.

HELD FOR RANSOM BY VILLAS

Washington, March 25.—Leonard Worcester, an American citizen, a native of Johnson, O., is being held for $2000 ransom by Villa forces in Mexico, it became known here today.

His wife has appealed in vain to Secretary of State Bryan, it is reported. Mrs. Worcester is now in Mexico. She has written G. I. Boede of Jefferson, her brother, about the plight of her husband.

Worcester, who is foreman for the Granby company, a St. Louis outfit, was taken into prison there. Twelve thousand dollars ransom was demanded by Quintana, one of Villa's lieutenants. This was later reduced to $2000.

San Antonio, Texas, March 25.—That the abolition of slavery in Yucatan will more than repay the trouble and annoyance to local dealers in the United States is declared by General Carranza in a message from Vera Cruz received here last night. Carranza is quoted as saying the reported scarcity of labor in Yucatan was not due to the war conditions but to the fact that owners of large plantations disposed of their slaves and in many instances sent them out of the country to save them from falling into the hands of the Carranza troops.

The planters' hundred per cent profits may be reduced fifty or sixty per cent, but the poor Mexican laborers said Carranza, will be made free and will reap the benefit of their work as free citizens.

'A PAIR OF SIXES'

In 4th Month of Remarkable Play at Ye Wilbur Theatre, Boston

"A Pair of Sixes" is now in its fourteenth week of wonderful success at the Wilbur Theatre, and it is creating just as much hearty and unbounded enthusiasm as it did the first week of the Boston engagement. Every other man, woman or child in Boston has already seen this remarkable farce at the Wilbur, and the others are doubtless preparing to see it before it leaves the city. For only once in years are the theatre-goers given such an opportunity for rich and wholesome laughter as is to be found in the performance of "A Pair of Sixes." Already it has broken all records for farce runs in Boston, and there is not the slightest decrease in the interest displayed in the piece.

From records of mail orders kept in the box office of the Wilbur Theatre since "A Pair of Sixes" opened there last December, it may be seen that nearly all of the leading citizens of New England who have visited Boston in the last three months have paid a visit to this play. The Mayors of every important city in New England, the Governors of three New England states, and other important dignitaries who have been in Boston lately have selected "A Pair of Sixes" as the play to entertain them.

"A Pair of Sixes" must soon leave to fill other engagements before the theatrical season closes, and those who have not yet enjoyed this "cure for the blues" are advised to secure their seats at once. The remarkable Boston company, headed by Frank McIntyre, Fritz Williams, Sam Hardy, Oza Waldrop, Maude Albana and Grace Carlyle, will not be seen in any other New England city.

NEW YORK WORLD OUT FOR CAUSE--SUFFRAGE

The New York World came out for suffrage on March 14, when it published its poll of the women of all classes in that state.

It says: "Hunger knows no sex. Want knows no sex. Necessity knows no sex. Law knows no sex. Property knows no sex. Only the ballot box knows sex." It goes on to say that the ballot box once knew rank, land primogeniture, income and money and family.

"All these paraphernalia of privilege have been swept away, and the disability of sex will follow. The time will come when the present opposition to woman suffrage will seem as short-sighted and senseless as the former opposition to manhood suffrage now seems.

"Democracies always move forward. That is their law of self-preservation. If they stand still or retrograde, they are lost."
